

Matthew R. Smith, M.D., Ph.D.

Director of the Genitourinary Malignancies Program, Massachusetts General Hospital Cancer Center, Coordinating Principal Investigator of the ARASENS study

Matthew R. Smith, M.D., Ph.D. is Professor of Medicine at Harvard Medical School and Director of the Genitourinary Malignancies Program at Massachusetts General Hospital Cancer Center. He received his MD and PhD degrees from Duke University School of Medicine. He completed Internal Medicine training at Brigham and Women's Hospital, a Medical Oncology fellowship at Dana Farber Cancer Institute, and a postdoctoral fellowship at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has published extensively on the development of novel therapies, treatment and prevention of bone metastases, and survivorship in prostate cancer. He has authored more than 250 peer-reviewed articles on prostate cancer including manuscripts in New England Journal of Medicine, Lancet, Journal of Clinical Oncology, Cancer, Journal of Clinical Endocrinology and Metabolism, and Clinical Cancer Research.